Who uses the Internet?

In the early years, the largest group of Internet users was university students and business professionals. This is still true today, but Internet users are changing. Today Internet users are a mix of people from elementary school students to grandparents. Computer manufacturers have created computers that are much easier to use than they were ten or fifteen years ago. The Internet has gotten easier, too. Just type a few words and click on a mouse, and you can get information on any topic you can think of. With more websites for older and younger audiences coming in the future, more and more people of all ages will enjoy the Internet.
